

As manager of the Brown Technology Resource Center my job is two-fold. On one hand I am the manager of the TRC and oversee the equipment and supervise the student employees who are there to help facilitate projects and run the center on a day-to-day basis. On the other hand, as an Academic Technology Specialist I am available to assist, advise, and teach faculty (in my assigned departments) with regard to classroom and research technology needs. When the students in the TRC are not able to provide appropriate assistance then I step in to help the faculty member with the problem to the best of my ability. In some instances this means redirecting the faculty person to their Academic Technology Specialist.
